PALM SUNDAY

Among all of the sights, sounds, and smells of Holy Week, one image will overshadow all the others: Jesus Christ crucified. What comes to mind when you look at the cross? Love? Suffering? Mercy? Salvation? How about obedience? The image of the crucified Christ is the greatest sign we will ever have of perfect, loving obedience to the will of God. Jesus spent his entire time on earth living in humble obedience. Throughout his time on earth, Jesus was obedient. He obeyed his parents (Luke 2:51). He obeyed God's call to public ministry (Matthew 3:14-15). He was obedient to God in times of trial and temptation (John 12:27-28). He spent time with his Father in prayer so that he might know and obey the Father's will (Luke 6:12-13). Obedience was not always easy for Jesus, just think about his struggle in the Garden of Gethsemane. But Jesus constantly relied on the Holy Spirit's power and so won the victory of obedience: his resurrection into glory! Do you want a summary of all the reading for today—and of the whole message of the gospel? It's this: Obedience to God always brings about exaltation. Jesus passed through death to new life because of his obedience, and he has paved a way for all of us to experience the same death-to-life transformation. As we meditate on the death and resurrection of Jesus this Holy Week, let's especially focus on the glorious victory that Jesus won for us by his reverent submission to God. Let's allow the promise of the gospel to move us to imitate Jesus' life of obedience. Of course it will entail suffering at times, but it will also entail deeper intimacy with Jesus and greater freedom and joy. Let's be confident that every time we obediently die to self, our Father will bring us to new life.

"Jesus, how awesome is your humility and obedience! Help me to always follow your example of obedient love and so share in your glory, both here and in heaven."
